Nathan Addo

Bio

- Age: 20
- Year: 3rd Year
- Major: Aerospace Engineering
- Gender: Man
- Background: 2nd Generation Ghanaian American
- Housing: Off-campus housing
- Transportation: Public Transportation, Bike

Goals

- Heavy class and work schedule
- Active in small cultural group chat
- Loves cultural foods and frequently purchases meals from expensive local Ghanaian restaurants
- Spends most of his time studying and working on assignments in the library.

Behavioral Patterns

- Heavy class and work schedule
- Active in small cultural group chat
- Loves cultural foods and frequently purchases meals from expensive local Ghanaian restaurants
- Spends most of his time studying and working on assignments in the library.

Pain Points

- Limited free time due to busy schedule which makes cooking complex cultural meals difficult to do consistently.
- Struggles with cooking cultural dishes due to skill, time, and nutritional value concerns.
- Has no easy means of reaching cultural stores for ingredients
- Mental health issues from lack of social engagement

Kannika Dangda

Bio

- 19 Years Old
- 2nd Year Student
- Computational Media at GT
- 1st Gen Thai Immigrant
- Lives on campus
- Transportation: Public Transportation, Campus Buses, Walking

Goals

•Share her knowledge in cooking with students on campus less experienced than her, such as her roommates
•Incorporate cooking cultural dishes into events planned by the organizations she is already involved in •Connect with more people of Thai descent on campus
•Share her recipes and methods for cooking her favorite dishes with those interested in an online setting

Behavioral Patterns

•Balances schoolwork with heavy involvement in campus organizations
•Cooks traditional Thai dishes often in on campus housing
•Active in Asian student organization and often helps organize intercultural events
•Spends most weeknight evenings at campus events or in meetings helping to plan for said events
•Occasionally will teach roommates to cook some of her cultural dishes and listens to them speak about their favorite cultural foods, although most of them are not experienced in cooking

Pain Points

•Struggles balancing the want to teach her recipes and cooking methods to anyone who asks with her need to complete schoolwork and the fact that she is always not available
•Lacks familiarity with methods to share her recipes and cooking online
•Due to not having a car, she often feels frustrated not being able to get the exact ingredients she would like for her recipes
•Some feelings of homesickness and disconnection from her Thai community as very few of her friends, even in the Asian student organization, are from a Thai background